NUMB. 49.

THE South-Carolina Gazette.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From Saturday, DECEMBER 28, to Saturday, JANUARY 4. 1734-5.

LONDON, Nov. 5.

AFfairs on the Rhine are again in great Confuſion by the Motions of the French from all Sides, whoſe Parties pillage even to the Gates of Manheim. The Territory of Mentz is hazarded with new demands for heavy Contributions, and ſix of their Bailiffs carried away for refuſing to pay them. They have a Train of Artillery with them. However, their real Deſign was uncertain. But, whatever it is, the Imperial Forces are alſo in Motion to defeat it. So that a new Action may probably enſue alſo on that Side.

We hear that the ingenious Dr. Halley has found out the Longitude; which, in a ſhort time, he will demonſtrate before the Royal Society.

Part of the Fleet is ſailed from Spithead to Plymouth Harbour, and the reſt order'd into the Harbours of Portſmouth and Chatham; but both Ships and Men are ſo diſpoſed as to be in readineſs, if Need be, during the Winter; and Sir John Norris, Admiral in Chief, arrived in Town Yeſterday, and waited on Their Majeſties, and afterwards on the Lords of the Admiralty.

The Exports and Imports of Merchandizes Yeſterday were the greateſt that have been for many Months; the moſt remarkable of which were 108000 Quarters of Wheat, and ſome Hundred Quarters of Rye, Barley, and Beans, chiefly to Spain; 15000 Stuffs for Portugal, &c. 150,000 Pieces of Callico for Hamburgh and Germany, 5000 Gallons of Wine for the Eaſt-Indies, and 120000 Oz. of Silver and 6000 Oz. of Gold Coin for Holland: And Samuel Holdon, Eſq; imported 240000 Weight of Pot-Aſhes from Archangel.

'Tis apprehended, that the War will be continued, ſince by private Letters from Amſterdam 'tis adviſed that a Negotiation is carrying on there for borrowing a large Sum of Money on the Credit of the Quick-ſilver Mines in Sileſia, at 5 per Cent. Intereſt, or 8 or 9 per Cent. Annuities for Life; which, 'twas not doubted, will ſoon be ſubſcribed.

Affairs in Poland, according to Advices by an Holland Mail this Day, are in the utmoſt Confuſion, King Staniſlaus's Parties prevailing even about Warſaw; having carried off from Prague (where King Auguſtus was elected) all the Archives, Money, Proviſions, and Forrage being amaſſed there for the Saxon Troops, ſtopped all the Corn which was going to Market, threaten'd the Inhabitants with Death if they ſent them the leaſt Subſiſtance; and that a ſtrong Confederacy of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, was formed, of which Staroſt Czarki was choſen Marſhal, who are bound by Oath not to give the leaſt Aid to the Saxons, and to pay 10 per Cent. of their Revenues to ſupport King Staniſlaus's Army.

Hague, Oct. 19. N. S.

The important Affair of the Pacification of all Europe is now at a Stand, being ſuſpended by the Anſwers of the Courts engaged in the War; who all proteſt, that there is nothing they ſo ardently deſire as Peace, but act as if they were quite averſe to it. This was doutleſs obſerved by the Powers that endeavoured to reconcile them, who were yet to ſeek for the Conditions upon which to conciliate their Intereſts, which appear ſo diſtant, that one might as well pretend to join the two Extremes without the Uſe of a Medium. To ſpeak the Truth, it is very likely, that the Pacifick Powers were always of the Opinion, that they ſhould not ſucceed; but the Situation of this Republick at the breaking out of the War not permitting her to engage therein, the Court of Great Britain might judge it prudent to have a little Patience, and not to ruſh into the Field without her. Do the Engliſh then, you will ask, think themſelves ever the more Invincible, for being in our Company? Not at all: But their Jealouſy upon another Account (Trade) will not permit them to ſuffer us to remain in Peace when they are engaged in War, for fear our Merchants ſhould introduce themſelves into Ports where the Engliſh have at preſent ſuch good Births. Thus the Court of England ſeemed at leaſt to enter into the Views of the Hollanders, in order to draw them into theirs; and we are told, that at length that deſirable Point is gained, and that the Two Maritime Powers having taken into Conſideration all the dreadful Conſequences of the too great Power of the Houſe of Bourbon, are now going to take Meaſures in Concert, to enable to ſay to her, Hitherto ſhalt thou go, and no farther. The Time preſſes; but it is to be hoped, that if ſuch a Salutary Reſolution be taken, it is not taken too late. Spain has been three Years making an Eſſay of her Forces, and is acquainted with the full Extent of them. The King of France, who formerly took no Pleaſure but in the Chace, begins to accuſtom himſelf to the Deluding Surname of Conqueror, What ought we not to fear from the United Power of thoſe two Monarchs, who ſeeing themſelves Maſters of three of the Richeſt, moſt Populous, and moſt Powerful Parts of Europe, Italy, France, and Spain, which are contiguous to each other, without any Interval between, may, when once they find themſelves in peaceable Poſſeſſion, take their Meaſures, and pretent to give Laws to Europe? The Councils of England are too vigilant, to ſuffer themſelves to be lulled aſleep: France may go on with her Declarations, that ſhe deſires no Conqueſts, that ſhe has no Thoughts of enlarging her Territories, &c. What matters it to the reſt of Europe, whether France or Spain keeps what they take from the Emperor, provided it reſts in the Houſe of Bourbon? That is enough for the reſt of Europe, and ſufficient Cauſe of Inquietude. All the Reaſons they had at Utrecht for clipping the Wings of the Crown of Spain upon the Head of a Bourbon, do ſtill ſubſiſt and more apparently now than then. It remains for thoſe Powers, who are the Depoſitories of the Balance of Europe to take Care, ne quid detrimenti Reſpublica capiat.

London, Nov. 5.

According to advice by a Holland Mail, the Emperor's Affairs appear in a worſe Situation then ever, ſince, as they ſay from Vienna, the Turks, influenc'd by Count Boneval, are laying up great Magazines in Boſnia, which is taken for a Preſage of no good to the Empire, and nothing leſs then a Rupture next Spring on that Side. But 'tis added, that the Treaty of 30000 Ruſſians was ſettled with the Czarina; and that the Emperor, having wrote to the Elector of Bavaria to know the Reaſons of his Warlike Preparations, had for Anſwer, that they were only for the Security of his Dominions, and that nothing was intended contrary to His Imperial Majeſty's Intereſt.

'Tis added, that Pr. Eugene arrived at Vienna the 10th of of last Month, dined next Day with Mr. Robinson, the British Minister, and took Occasion at Table to applaud greatly the Prudence, Conduct, and great Abilities of the Pr. of Orange, which his Highness said were equally admired throughout the whole Army. And that as soon as the Army in Italy is reinforced, as proposed, to 70000 Men, during the Winter, Prince Eugene is to command it, and endeavour to penetrate into the Milanese.

Count Coningseg, we are told resolves to continue the Campain in Italy during the whole Winter; and being joined by 6000 Recruits, confined as he is to so narrow a Compass, is seeking an Opportunity, at all Hazards, to extend his Quarters, by forcing his Way into the Cremonese. So that a new Action may soon be expected.

The King of Prussia, we are told, is now worse than ever, the Gout being fallen into his Right Arm, and his Legs so inflamed, that he had no Rest for 3 Nights

There is shew'd at Northampton a Woman of Twenty Two Years of Age, Born in Leicestershire, who is full Seven Foot high without Shoes, and every Way proportioned.

They write from Portsmouth, that an Affair happen'd lately on board the Fleet at Spithead, which threaten'd very ill Consequences. — A Dutch Man of War came and anchor'd in that Road, Soon after Notice was given she had 18 English Sailors on board. The Captain sent to demand them, and offer'd as many Dutch Hands by Way of Exchange. Being refus'd, he threaten'd to give him a Broad-side; but the Dutchman sent Word back that he might, and he would answer him. Upon this, Complaint was made above, and Two Men of War ordered by the Admiral to ride up to the Ship, make a final Demand, and let fly on Refusal: When the High and Mighty Gentleman began to hear Reason, and comply'd with friendly Exchange.

'Tis generally reported that the Negotiations for Peace stick at the Court of Vienna; whence 'tis feared the War is more likely to continue than an End put to it.

P. S. Our gazette says, that the King of Prussia was so ill that he had ordered the Manner of his Funeral.

Letters from Vienna mention that Court highly pleas'd with some Dispatches arriv'd there from Count Kinski, Imperial Minister at London: That the Emperor still persists in his Resolution to hear of no Peace, but on honourable and advantageous Terms; and that they talk there of Prince Eugene's making a Tour to Italy incognito.

Paris, Nov. 5. We see here a List of the Troops that the King of Sardinia will have on Foot next Year; they amount to 47,000 Men, including 6000 which the Garrisons are to furnish his Majesty, conformably to an ancient Treaty with the Person whoever is possess'd of the Milaneze. We reckon after the Arrival of 15 Battalions now on their March for Italy we shall have 50,000; and as the Spaniards are to send 20 or 25,000 by way of Reinforcement, the Allies will be in a Condition to shew 100,000 Men in the Field, independent of Garrisons. Measures are already taking for the Subsistance of so large an Army, and the new Purveyors for Italy have strict Orders to fill the Magazines betimes.

Paris Nov. 13. The great Number of Couriers which have arrived lately at Fotainebleau, and likewise been dispatched from thence to Foreign Parts, give us great Reason to believe something very important is upon the Anvil. The King has issued an Ordinance, enjoining all the Englishmen, Scotchmen and Irishmen, who are in this City, or any other Part of the Kingdom, without Calling or Employ, from the Age of 18 to 50 whether they have been formerly in the Service or not, to repair instantly to the Places where the Irish Regiments are garrison'd, and to list with those Troops, under Pain of the Gallies. His Majesty has issued another Ordinance, whereby he promises Pardon to all Deserters, provided they repair to his Army in Italy, on or before the 1st Day of May next.

LONDON, Nov. 9.

We learn by the Holland Mail just arrived, that on the 6th-Instant, at Night the Imperialists abandoned Worms, and passed the Rhine, to join the Troops in the Neckerau, carrying off all the Provisions and Forage, and leaving the Inhabitants only a bare Subsistance; That the Duke of Wirtimberg, upon Advice that the French have entered Worms, and that they have in all Appearance some extraordinary Design in View, has reinforced the Camp on the Neckerau, to observe their Motions.

Several Expresses have arrived this Week, dispatched by the Earl of Waldegrave from France, and others by the Earl of Essex from the Court of Turin, and his Excellency Mr. Walpole at the Hague; but we know not the Contents thereof.
